

BADGERS WIN IN STATEHOOD

Wisconsin Representatives Were With The Majority Of The Senators After All.

VOTE ON THE MEASURE PASSED

Plan To Force Their Entrance Into United States Against Their Will Will Probably Be Frustrated Now.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—Great elation is felt among seven Wisconsin republican members of the house who stood up strongly in the statehood fight against the policy of forcing a union of Arizona and New Mexico, over the action of the conference committee in reaching an agreement which squarely indorses precisely what Representatives Babcock, Minor, Adams, Otjen, Esch, Davidson, and Brown contended for of lending the fight in the house against the statehood bill. It is a significant fact that after the pronounced vote in the senate favorable to eliminating Arizona and New Mexico or giving their people opportunity to express at the polls their wishes in the premises, the conferees of both houses have agreed for precisely what the Wisconsin republicans contended, namely, that at a general election, the people of Arizona and New Mexico shall have opportunity to vote separately "yes" or "no" upon the question whether these territories shall be united to form one state. If a majority of the votes in either territory are cast against the proposed union, the two territories remain outside. To the action of the seven Wisconsin republicans and the stand taken by Senator Spooner in the senate, is in large measure due this agreement, which is now upon all sides conceded to be the correct, fair and decent thing to do with respect to these territories.

It should be remembered also that the republicans named, with Senator Spooner in the senate, while standing squarely against the unreasonable and un-republican policy proposed with respect to statehood, did the same thing with respect to the Philippine tariff. All the Wisconsin representative members, except Mr. Cooper, voted against the unfair Philippine bill, which was calculated to subject the tobacco and beet sugar industries in Wisconsin to the unfair competition of Philippine products. The senate committee on the Philippines indorsed the course of the Wisconsin republicans by voting to kill the Philippine bill in the committee. So generally is that policy now acquiesced in that Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, appears to have abandoned his former idea of asking a vote to rescue the bill.

Upon this question as upon the statehood bill, the action of the Wisconsin republicans in the house received the indorsement of the senate.

The importance of the stand taken by the majority of the Wisconsin representatives in the house is shown by the fact that of the forty-three republicans who stood out against the statehood plan of the house leaders, the largest single delegation from any state so recording their vote, was the seven Wisconsin republican representatives. Babcock, Minor and Adams were especially active and insistent in organizing the insurrectionary forces, which opposed both the Philippine bill and statehood bill. To them no small part of the credit is due for the result which is now amply vindicated by the action of the senate. It is also generally recognized that the sturdy stand taken by Senator Spooner in backing up the action of his Wisconsin colleagues in the house contributed much toward bringing about the agreement on the statehood bill in the senate which gives the people of Arizona and New Mexico opportunity to express their wishes regarding admission to the union.

In no congress of recent years has there been waged a more vigorous and well organized movement in the interest of domestic industries, and of the rights of the people to express their wishes upon a given question, than was that waged this winter by the Wisconsin republicans in the house and senate. Notwithstanding his oft-repeated assertion of willingness to submit questions to the people for their final decision, Senator La Follette voted in the senate to compel the union of Arizona and New Mexico without giving the people of these territories opportunity to vote upon the subject. He, therefore, has neither part nor lot in the conference agreement which has been brought about largely through the efforts of seven of the ten republicans in the house, and of Spooner in the senate.

SHONTS TALK TO STUDENTS ON MANY DIFFERENT PHASES

Chairman Of The Canal Commission Delivers An Address At Drake University This Morning To Graduating Class.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Des Moines, Ia., June 14.—Honorable Theodore P. Shonts, chairman of the Isthmian Canal commission, today delivered an address before a large audience at the Drake university silver anniversary services.

There has never been a time in the history of this country when the need of the higher education, which our universities alone are competent to supply, was so great as it is today. The highest function of a university is to supply well disciplined and well informed minds, which are capable of accurate thinking. There has never been any lack of the opposite kind of mind; this is the very fountain-head of misinformation and error. This crop, like those of weeds and mosquitoes, takes care of itself.

In a time like the present, when a spirit of discontent and of revolt against existing conditions is abroad in the land, the harm which an ignorant mind, no matter how sincere and well meaning, may do, is incalculable. Its bad influence can only be offset by calm reasoning and solid knowledge. The present upheaval of unrest call it what you will, Socialism, collectivism, communism, or incipient anarchy, is like countless others that have preceded it. It has the same time-worn nostrums for the transformation of human nature and the abrogation of natural laws. There is scarcely a panacea proposed today for the cure of social ills and political distempers that has not been put forward many times during the past four centuries, and that has not been tried and found useless. Those that are now in name or fame are based upon the same old principles, and have as a central idea the assumption that demagogues and charlatans in places of power would administer to the mental affairs of all grades so honest, so intelligent, so completely in the interest of the people, that the millennium would come at a bound, people in times like the present, there are not wanting throughout the land persons who are ignorant of both the antiquity and the futility of these remedies from the back shelves of the storehouse of political quackery. One man in a community with the thoroughly informed mind is a competent force against a hundred ignorant, unsound, or much minded persons who advocate these remedies.

Calm reasoning is necessary to meet, direct into safe channels this spirit of discontent and revolt. That there are grave causes for it cannot be denied. The demands for reform, hysterical and unreasonable as many of them are, are well grounded, and must be heeded. The veils complained of have come about because, as a people, we have drifted from the old standard of honesty and patient accumulation; into a mad rush for wealth, for those piling up of enormous fortunes in the shortest possible period of time. We must be brought back to the old moorings, not by violence and unlawful methods, but by calm and inflexible application of law. That the country will right itself, that it will pass safely through this crisis as it has passed through all those that have preceded it, to one familiar with its history, can doubt. At heart the people are sound and at heart they are also just and rational. They have always been more wise, more patient, and more fair-minded than many of their would-be leaders, for they have always insisted upon becoming possessed of the truth before taking action. They will show the same qualities in the present emergency. They know a demagogue or a charlatan when they see him; and at the first sign invariably at the second.

They have never shown a disposition to burn down their house to roast a pig, and they are not likely to do so in this instance. The educated man who does not pin his faith to the millennium would come at a bound, people in times like the present, there are not wanting throughout the land persons who are ignorant of

ENTIRE COUNTRY PAYS TRIBUTE TO OLD GL

Flag Day Observed In Every City Of Land—Day Also Anniversary Of Israel Putnam's Famed Escape.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14.—Probably in no other city of the country is "Flag day" so generally observed as in Philadelphia, and quite naturally, for it was in this city that the flag was given birth. Congress, assembled at Independence hall one hundred and twenty-nine years ago, resolved, "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing the new constellation."

Fought Without Colors.
At the beginning of the Revolutionary war, and with the formal repudiation of the flag of St. George and the Union Jack of England, there was no American flag under which the impending battles were to be fought. There were conglomerate colonial flags, and here and there a private banner of some great landed proprietor, but no recognized American flag.

Congress Took Action.
There was no little wrangling over this fact, and the continental or confederate congress set about agreeing upon the form, character and general purport of one. Congress accordingly appointed Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Lynch and Benjamin Harrison as a committee to agree upon and formally report a flag design.

Suggestions Not Adopted.
Near the close of the year 1775, they reported in favor of adopting the British union jack plus thirteen stripes as the flag. This report was never acted on or at least was not adopted. Washington wanted a five pointed star added; others were inclined to adopt a modified form of the Dutch flag with its broad red stripes.

The "Stars and Stripes."
Finally, on June 14, 1777, congress agreed upon a flag of thirteen stripes with thirteen stars on a blue field, thus appropriating a little here and a little there until the star and the stripe and the colors red, white and blue, appeared upon the banner, and the "stars and stripes" became the insignia of the republic. Of course everyone recalls the work of Betsy Ross, who no doubt suggested much as well as did the sewing of the first flag.

At The Betsy Ross House.

At the Betsy Ross house, 239 Arch street, the national anthem today by school children, dresses appropriate to patriotic societies. The house turned over to the federal government by the American and Betsy Ross Memorial and will be maintained as a memorial and museum of revolutionary relics.

Throughout Nation.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the great lakes to the gulf, this morning's sunrise was greeted by a raising of flags, in greater number and with more ceremony than on any other day of the year, except perhaps July 4. Today is "Flag day," the 129th anniversary of the creation of the "stars and stripes" by the American congress. Thirty-five years after the adoption of the flag congress ordered that a new star should be added for each new state admitted to the union. There are thirty-two more stars in that field now than when the flag was first raised, and this number soon will be increased by the admission of the southwestern territories.

In Memory Of "Old Put."

Greenwich, Conn., June 14.—Under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution and in the presence of a large gathering of notables, the Israel Putnam cottage at Horse Neck was formally dedicated today as a colonial museum. Governor Roberts, under escort of the famous Putnam Phalanx, was present, as were also other state officials, army officers and representatives of patriotic and historical societies of New York, Boston, Hartford, Springfield, and other points.

Is An Old Landmark.

The cottage was for a time the headquarters of General Israel Putnam in 1779, and was occupied by him on the famous day when he escaped from the British by riding his horse down a flight of stone steps out in what is now known as "Put's Hill." The house is thought to be two hundred years old, and records show it was standing in 1729, and it was not, now, in its early days, was used as an inn, and there was no doubt that General Putnam was an inmate of it on the morning of February 26, 1779, when he effected his famous escape from a party of British soldiers.

"It takes eight days to make Perfect Malt"—PABST.

To brew the best beer the brewer must first have, make or buy perfect Malt, for the malt is the soul of the beer. Perfect malt is only made by the exclusive Pabst eight-day method. This process is double the expense of the usual four-day method of making malt. Four-day malt cannot make perfect beer such as

because four-day malt is a forced and unnatural process and beer made from four-day malt lacks the nutritious food elements which distinguish Pabst Beer.

Pabst eight-day malt, the choicest hops, pure water and a process spotlessly clean are the secret of the superiority of Pabst Beer. The exclusive Pabst method of brewing with Pabst eight-day malt gives Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer its rich nutrition and the rich mellow flavor found in no other, that marks it the perfect beer.

FLAG DAY.

Is the day when all over the school children have been taught to recognize the stars and stripes in song and story, and it is time to know that the day has generally observed. Every house should have its flag-staff flying the national emblem should float only on flag day, but on all occasions when patriotism prompts to a pleasant duty of recognition.

Love of country is as sacred as the love of God or of home, and it should be developed and cherished in every American school. The flag stands more than any other emblem, demands respect in every land, and the safeguard of the nation.

It speaks without a voice, in a language peculiar to itself, yet the people of every tongue understand it. Homage and respect are cheerily bestowed. The stars and stripes could inspire the heart of every American boy and girl, with gratitude for a birthright in the best land under the sun; the land where desire rewards effort with liberal hand.

TARIFF OR FREE TRADE.

The railroads will be regulated, the houses cleaned, and various reforms inaugurated during the twelve months so that the one only issue in the campaign of 1907 will be the tariff issue.

The Bryan party will be lined up for free trade, while the republican party is more or less divided. Governor Cummins of Iowa represents a liberal sprinkling of free traders, and while absolute free trade is not advocated, tariff reduction which amounts to about the same thing in effect, is freely discussed.

It is never difficult to understand the democratic party's favor for free trade. The party is out most of the time, and in its ambition to get in, and every policy is adopted to appeals to ignorance and prejudice. Free trade is always attractive. Men like to be told that they have been robbed, and there is never danger when the responsibility for the theft is placed on the tariff. They like to be told that but for the tariff, goods would be half the money and they are to forget the experiences of a few years ago, when Cleveland and his friends were in control.

It is difficult to understand why they are so slow to realize that it means vastly more to labor than it means to capital. While there may be abuses under the tariff, they are not so flagrant when compared to the abuses under American in-

Protection says to the foreign manufacturer: "You can't enter the American market with goods made by half paid labor, without paying for the privilege, and the charges imposed for the privilege represents the difference between American and foreign wages."

It is true that the foreign goods can be sold cheaper than the goods made on this side, but what do cheap goods amount to when our factories are closed, and an army of men out of employment. If the tariff is a tax it is a tax for the benefit of American labor, and people who appreciate the situation pay it without complaint.

Good prices for farm products, for manufactured goods and for labor, means good times, while cheap prices means idleness and hard times. The Cedar Rapids Iowa Republican recently sized up the situation correctly as follows:

"The farmer has been getting $0.25 for his hogs and two year old steers are worth upward of four cents. His corn is worth 33-1/2 cents and horses have sold for $1.50, ordinary stock.

"Hogs have sold as low as $2.55, twelve years ago, and horses as low as $10, and corn nine cents a bushel. But the higher prices are not enough. The farmer thinks that he ought to buy the things he has to buy at the old prices of twelve years ago, while he is selling the things he has to sell at present prices."

"In other words, we all want to buy what we have to buy at cheap prices and sell what we have to sell at high prices. That is human nature, nothing else. It is all right to feel that way, but it is, of course, impossible of realization."

"The things we have to buy, others have to sell, and those others are just as solicitous about their prices as we are."

"The men who work on the sections are now receiving from $1.50 to $1.75 a day. The standard price used to be $1.10. In all the trades the hours have been shortened and the price per hour advanced. But the men are told that they ought to be buying the things they have to buy at the old prices. The reason they are not able to do that is the tariff."

"Now tariffs are a matter of adjustments. But they cannot be adjusted as rapidly as conditions change. When markets go up or down the tariffs can not be put up or down. President Roosevelt in his last message laid stress on the fact that the main thing in a tariff is stability. Too frequent changes would produce fluctuations that would jar, if not upset, the industrial world."

"There is no one opposed to tariff changes, when necessary. But some insist on congress keeping up with the changes that are constantly going on in the industrial and economic conditions of the country."

"The net result is that some republicans think they can keep up with the clamors and the dissatisfactions and the changes. But after they had topped off a little here and a little there, would the dissatisfied be satisfied, would the clamors be stilled, would the changed conditions all be met?"

"Of course not!"

"There would always remain some thing unmet, and somebody to kick. If the present tariff is a robbery," as asserted by the present governor of Iowa, would the revised tariff be other than a robbery?"

"The democratic argument against the tariff would remain the same, the dissatisfied would still be dissatisfied. We must be either for protection or for free trade, and if we are protectionists there is no use in trying to keep up with the demands of the free traders."

"But we can keep on 'fussing,' as the late Tom Reed called it, until we get the other thing."

"And that is what many are beginning to look for and to prepare for."

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.

Down the street came a wagon, loaded with meat and drawn by a well-rounded, well-fed little mare, says the New York Times. Her steps became slower, and slower, and finally, in the middle of the car tracks, she stopped.

"Git up," said the driver, "git up, Jenny!"

But Jenny only turned appealing eyes toward the man on the seat.

Behind him came the shouts and oaths of other drivers.

"Poor Jenny, poor little horse!" said the big, dirty man. "She shd all tired out."

At the sound of his voice the little horse sighed a sigh of tired appreciation.

"Never mind," he went on soothingly, as he scrambled down off the seat and took her by the bridle. "We'll go right out to the side here and rest a bit," and he led her away from the crowd and stood patting her well-carried sides, while she rubbed her nose against his face.

"The other drivers moved on, then turned and looked. Some of them smiled; others replaced the whips had been taken from their sockets to hurry their own horses after the delay."

In Ironical Vein. Milwaukee News: Of course, it was a great surprise to Mr. Bryan when he reached Berlin and found that folks were talking of running him for president. No doubt, he expected that they were going to ask Mr. Parker to try it again.

Women's Attitude Toward Smoot. Chicago Tribune: Over 300,000 of the women of the United States have petitioned for the expulsion of Senator Smoot. In their opinion Mr. Smoot is a husband who needs to be uplifted by his coat collar and the slack of his trousers and tossed over the battlements.

What Else Can You Expect? Madison Journal: If you let your boy run unrestricted on the streets at night; let him congregate in places where he has no business to be, with evil companions, do not blame fate if he is hauled before the court as a juvenile burglar nor blame the newspapers for the attendant publicity.

Brother Schlatter Grows Ambitious. Chicago Chronicle: Whatever may be the merits of Brother Schlatter's claims to divine inspiration, it is certain that he is taking a grave risk in coming to Chicago and setting up as a sort of assistant general superintendent of the universe. The fate of previous prophets who have essayed that role in this city has invariably been disastrous. We need look no further than Brother "Koresch," Teed and Brother "Elijah" Dowle to appreciate the manner of finish which Brother Schlatter is inviting. He is ill-advised.

Organization Within Spirit Of Law. Appleton Post: The primary law can never remove, nor does it seek to the influence of organization from individuals and combinations of individuals. There is nothing in the law, or in its spirit, to prevent Governor Davidson, Connor and any other candidates for different offices, working as a team for their common success. Other candidates for like places, may be compelled to combine in a like manner. No man can expect to succeed at the primary, certainly not for a state office, without a sound organization of some kind to back him. Hence, so long as Connor does not call the committee officially to support him, and depends on his own organizing powers to promote his candidacy, he is free from any indecency in holding the office of chairman.

Senator Stout's Great School. Evening Wisconsin: Senator Stout's latest announcement, as to the future of his training school at Menominee, Wisconsin, is of interest to educators generally. He has purchased an area of four acres in the heart of Menominee, bordering on the lake, as a site for cottage dormitories for those who attend the school. This extension is said to be preliminary to a further enlargement of the school, by the addition of a trade school for boys, and a school of applied arts for girls, on a promontory overlooking Red Cedar River.

properly developing his philanthropic plans in the interest of popular education. As president of a state normal school and afterwards as state superintendent of public instruction, L. D. Harvey has demonstrated that he possesses the qualities of successful leadership in educational work.

The proposed extension of the school at Menominee is of particular interest to school boards which have contemplated the installation of manual training plants, or the extension of manual training systems now in existence. Its aim is to be the evolution of a progressive course in manual training that can be grafted upon the curricula of the various city school systems. Many school boards would doubtless entertain the idea of introducing manual training if they could be shown how the important bunch could be grafted upon the academical work without detriment to the latter.

THE OTHER SIDE. Burton Hanson, general solicitor of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, has issued a statement in reply to the recent communication of Walter L. Houser on the subject of two-cent passenger fare in Wisconsin.

One of the principal arguments put forth by Mr. Houser was that the railways discriminate in favor of those who have money enough to buy a two thousand mile mileage book, as against those who have not, and have to buy their tickets, as they ride. Mr. Hanson, in reply to this shows that, on the St. Paul railway more than twice as many passengers ride on excursion and commutation tickets at less rates than mileage or credential tickets, and that three times as many miles of travel are afforded by these rates as are by the mileage and credential rates. Mr. Hanson asks whether Mr. Houser intends to be understood as protesting against these rates, which carry almost half the passengers of the state outside of mileage and credential, and are as clearly a discrimination against the two-cent rate of the mileage and credential, as that rate is against the three-cent rate.

Mr. Houser suggests that as the pass has been very largely abolished in Wisconsin there has been an enormous increase in the revenues of the railways, and they can therefore afford to carry passengers for less money than formerly. In reply to this Mr. Hanson asserts that those who had passes under the old system were largely those who would not, and do not ride without the pass, and in support of his contention that there has been no increase of revenue from this source he shows that for the last year the increase of passenger revenue in Wisconsin amounted to 2.2 cents per passenger, train mile, while outside of Wisconsin, where there are no anti-pass laws in force, the increase in passenger revenue per train mile for the same period was 4.68, showing that even with the reduction of passes, the passenger growth of Wisconsin was less than half the passenger growth of the entire line outside of this state.

In reply to the assertion of Mr. Houser that the railways are making enormous profits, Mr. Hanson states that the St. Paul road has never earned as much as seven per cent upon the money actually invested in its business in but one year, and that was last year, the most prosperous year in all its history. He denies that the St. Paul road puts earnings into betterments and extensions as claimed by Mr. Houser, and asserts that the books and records of the company show the contrary to be the fact.

Mr. Hanson shows that exclusive of mileage and credential, which is now substantially upon a two-cent basis, about 58 per cent of the passengers, hauled locally in Wisconsin ride on the three-cent basis, and that the fares they pay amount to 2.78 cents per mile. The shrinkage from three cents is due to the fact that at various points local tickets are sold at the rate of less than the actual distance on account of the shorter distance by competing lines. He shows that the other 42 per cent of travel local to Wisconsin travelers on excursion and commutation tickets, which yield, in the average, a rate of 1.55 cents a mile. He states that the travel on the 2.78 rate averages a journey of only about 18 miles, and that as such a short journey has all the terminal expenses of handling the passengers loaded onto so small a distance, it should properly bear a relatively higher rate than business on which the terminal expense is spread out over a longer distance.

Mr. Hanson calls attention to the fact that the excursion rates, which of themselves carry over a fifth of the passengers of the state outside of mileage and credential, at an average of 1.8 cents a mile, are the rates on which the farmers of the state go to the state fair and their county fairs, on which the old soldiers attend their annual reunions, and on which the secret societies and lodges of the state hold their annual meetings, and to the fact that the commutation rates, which carry another fifth of the passengers of the state outside of mileage and credential, afford an average rate of 1.3 cents, and that all of these rates would be increased by bringing the business of the state up to a two-cent basis.

A NEW JULY FOURTH PLAN.

Author of "In His Steps" Against Spending Money For Fireworks. The Rev. Charles H. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," recently argued a new plan at Topeka, Kan., for the celebration of the Fourth of July by Topeka and all the towns and cities throughout the United States, says the Kansas City Times. Instead of spending money for fireworks and other foolish things, he says, would it not be much better to take up a general collection for a fund to build and equip a great public hall for each town and city where gatherings calculated to uplift the tone of the whole community could be held?

"Such a hall," he said, "could stand on a piece of ground large enough to include a children's playground, kept and cared for by the children of the city. Within the building itself could be held any gathering which centered about the welfare of the city. It could be dedicated to civic progress; to good citizenship rallies; to children's gatherings for learning patriotic songs, etc. In other words, it would be a common rallying place, not for entertainments or amusements, but for the uplifting of the whole city in its moral, aesthetic life."

And when the shades of evening were unfolding very fast. Don't you think that you would jump about and choke? "Ha, at last! I can sing a merry madrigal or rondo on the roof."

DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST RAZOOK

AND NEIMER FAMILY COMMENCED BY HAL REIFENBERG.

SEEKS TO RECOVER $5,000

For Injury to Reputation and Loss of Position Alleged to Have Resulted From Malicious Prosecution.

On May 12, 1905, Hal Reifenberg of this city was acquitted by a jury in municipal court of the charges of assaulting, beating, bruising, and otherwise ill-treating Mrs. Mary Neimer in a front yard dispute alleged to have arisen on the ninth day of April of that year. Charging that Albie Razook, Mary Neimer, Schlorer Neimer, and Harris Neimer did maliciously and falsely and without reasonable or probable cause procure her arrest, imprisonment, and prosecution on a charge of which he was acquitted and that the notoriety obtained through the publication of the false statements made by witnesses against him in Janesville and other papers cost him his position, as machinist, at which work he had been earning $3.50 a day, besides lawyers' fees and great bodily pain and mental distress, Mr. Reifenberg has brought suit in circuit court against the above-named parties for $5,000 damages. Of this sum $2,000 is his estimate of the injury sustained by the loss of his position. Summons and complaint have been served by J. J. Cunningham, plaintiff's attorney, and M. P. Richardson of plaintiff's counsel.

Looked Like Blind-Stragglers: About six o'clock last night an ors driving the delivery wagon for the Ameripoli green-house became unmanageable on South Main street and after pursuing an erratic course down the highway hurried itself against an express wagon standing in front of the Lewis Knitting Works, and was thrown prostrate in the roadway. A boy who was driving the animal was thrown out of the vehicle, but escaped unhurt. It was believed, at first, that the horse had committed suicide, but it presently surprised the crowd that had gathered round by struggling to its feet and attempting to amble along its way. The thills were broken and the animal sustained a few scratches.

AN UNKIND KINDNESS.

Respect for Foreigner's Feelings Led Him to Make Ludicrous Blunder.

Politicians have never been counted the national virtue; but an Italian nobleman attached to his country's embassy in Washington would make one of its manifestations a national fault.

The count has been in America long enough to have lost, with some of his accent, all sensitiveness about his early difficulties with the language. He tells this story of mistaken American kindness to himself:

"One of my greatest difficulties in learning English," he said, "was the politeness of my American friends in ignoring my what you call blunders. At first my words were not always to say, on the spot; yet I was allowed to say many words that were wrong until the time came when a laugh could not be stopped."

"Once at Newport my hostess took me to drive. Bellevue avenue was crowded, and the horses were magnificent. I wanted to tell my admiration of the high-stepping horses, but could not think of the word. 'Madam,' I said, 'what should I call this, and I laid my hand on my knee. 'Trousers,' she replied."

"Ah, now I can say my thought," said I. "The American horses swing their trousers magnificently high. Madam did not move an eyelash. I will remember, I said to myself—trousers, trousers."

"Next day the guests of madam were taken to a picnic on the rocks by the sea; the hostess was carrying a small towel. 'What part may I cut for you?' she said. All I could remember of the body was the word I had learned on the drive the day before. 'The trousers,' if you please, madam, I said with promptness. For a moment there was silence, then one of the young ladies burst out to laugh, then everybody, and there were afterward many apologies, to my embarrassment."

"Now, would it not have been a kindness if madam had corrected my first mistake?"

SMOOTH SWINDLERS WORKING FARMERS

Rockford Star Tells of a New Game That Was Worked Near There.

Farmers in this vicinity, says the Rockford Star, are warned of a person who may call on them in the near future and make an effort to list their property for sale. The men who are working the scheme have one of the best money-makers yet brought out. Ira Dexter is the man, it is charged, who has been working the graft in nearby places and he represents himself to the farmers as a real estate agent, asking them to list their farms with him for sale, with the understanding that he shall be paid two per cent in case of sale.

A contract is presented and signed, but it is alleged the document presented is not what the farmer thinks, a contract guaranteeing the agent the two per cent in case of sale, but a note guaranteeing to pay him two per cent of the price list of the land for his expert services as an advertiser in getting the farm before the attention of the public.

It is understood that the same deal has been worked through this immediate vicinity, but instead of having the land advertised elsewhere, and that a settlement has been made in some of the cases, those swindled paying up and keeping the matter quiet.

STON BILL READY FOR ACTION

GENERAL GOVERNMENT TO PAY
THE EXPENSES.

MEAT TO BE A PASSPORT

Meat and Meat Products Entering International Commerce Must Carry Certificate Indicating Ingredients, But Date Is Waived.

Washington, June 14.—A meat inspection provision was completed by the house committee on agriculture Wednesday and will be presented to the house for action at once, which it is declared by the committee will insure that American meats and meat products are healthful, clean and in every respect wholesome and fit for consumption.

Important features of the legislation that it places the cost of inspection on the government and annual automatic appropriation of $100,000 to pay the expenses.
It requires a government inspection of all animals
before they enter interstate commerce, and in addition to this of purity to the carriage of agriculture products which enter foreign markets.

To secure this label
to be handled in according to regulations to be promulgated by the secretary of agriculture
authorized to employ
the civil service law,
an adequate corps of inspectors to supervise the enforcement of the regulations.

Use of preservatives
in preparation of meats are deleterious to the matter of defection to the secretary. The label on the meat must indicate the ingredients,
and manufacture is not to be stated.

Requirements, which are to prescribe and ensure complete sanitation
of buildings, whether slaughter
or canning establishments.

There are many penalty clauses attached to violations of all these provisions. The common carrier is subject to a heavy penalty if he accepts transportation any goods not bearing government label, or in case of shipments, in addition to the penalty, he is accompanied by the required label. The packers are subject to penalty for false labeling as well as for violations of the provisions of the act.

Trade names
are allowed in some cases, in the case of the secretary, but in the contents of the package
must be stated.

Penalty for Violations.
Violation of any of the provisions of the regulations is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $10,000 or imprisonment not exceeding two years. There is a heavy penalty against the bribery inspectors, being imprisonment not exceeding three years and a fine of $1,000 to $10,000 for offering a bribe, and the same punishment for acceptance of a bribe on the part of inspectors.

Small butchers are excluded from the operation of the regulations.

Conclusion of the committee reached after three full days of deliberation, following the exhaustive hearings held in connection with the committee's report regarding conditions in the packing houses at Chicago, the statement of the packers,
the representation of live stock interests.

Conclusion represents the judgment of nine members of the committee against seven who preferred Beveridge amendment, slightly modified. A minority report will be presented to the house by some of the members dissenting.

Cromer, of Indiana, led the forces in the committee favoring the Beveridge amendment. He offered four amendments to the Beveridge amendment, and then moved its adoption by the committee in the place of the substitute which had been perfected. On this motion the committee sustained by Messrs.
Haugen, of Connecticut; Davis, of Minnesota; and Lamb, of Virginia.
Alabama, and Chandler of Mississippi. Nine votes were cast in the negative on this motion, and the substitute was then adopted by the nine negative votes
of the other motion.

Text of Amendments.
The four amendments which Mr.
Cromer offered to the Beveridge amendment are all contained in the amendment. They were:

First, that in the destruction of unwholesome products, the destruction
should only be for food purposes;
and that the inspection should be extended to its possible, waiving the civil penalty for one year in the case of inspectors, and fourth,
that the farmer and small businessmen should be exempted from inspection.

MINNESOTA STATE TICKET

REPUBLICANS NAME A. L. COLE, OF WALKER, FOR GOVERNOR.

J. F. Jacobson Loses After Apparently Having the Nomination Securely Tied Up.

Duluth, Minn., June 14.—The Republican state convention Wednesday nominated a complete state ticket at the close of a preliminary campaign which has lasted three months.

The ticket follows: Governor, A. L.
Cole, Walker; lieutenant governor, A.
O. Eberhart, Manitowish; treasurer, C. C.
Dinehart, Slayton; attorney general, B. T. Young, Appleton; secretary of state, Julius Schmalz, Redwood Falls;
auditor, S. G. Iverson, Rushford; clerk of supreme court, C. A. Pidgeon, Buffalo; railroad commissioner, C. F. Staples, West St. Paul.

The convention endorsed United States Senator Knute Nelson for re-election. This endorsement with a Republican legislature is practically equivalent to Senator Nelson's reelection.

The platform gives an enthusiastic endorsement of the present national Republican administration; approves
the Panama canal; protection to American labor and industries; the gold money standard; legislation against the adulteration of food; election of United States senators by direct vote
of the people; a two-cent railroad fare;
abolition of free passes and a readjustment of freight rates.

RAILROAD PAYS FOR PRIVATE CARS

THE KEYSTONE AND BERWIND-
WHITE COMPANIES FAVORED.

SECURES ORDER FOR COAL

General Manager Tells Agent It Is Necessary to Pay Commission,
But Vice President Pugh
Holds Otherwise.

Philadelphia, June 14.—Orders for private cars to be used by independent coal mining companies, were placed with the Pressed Steel Car company by the Pennsylvania Railroad company and paid for by that corporation, which afterward had a settlement with the coal companies.

This fact was established at Wednesday's session of the interstate commerce commission through the testimony of K. E. Swartz, chief clerk of the sales department of the Pressed Steel Car company and by information volunteered by Francis I. Gowen, counsel for the railroad company.

Mr. Swartz' memory was uncertain, but after persistent questioning by Attorney Glasgow, he recollected that orders for private cars to be used, he believed, by the Keystone and the Berwind-White companies had been placed with the car building company.
He did not know who paid for them,
but Lawyer Gowen said it was in evidence that the Pennsylvania Railroad company, having made the contracts,
was obligated for the cost.

Railroad Paid for Cars.
This information was a surprise to Mr. Glasgow, who said the fact was not in evidence, and that he had been trying to secure the information. On being assured by Mr. Gowen that payment for the cars was made to the railroad by the coal companies, Mr.
Glasgow immediately asked that the vouchers be filed with the commission. It was learned from the witness that cars ordered in bulk by the railroad got the benefit of a special rate, but he was unable to say whether the coal companies profited by this arrangement.

Frederick MacGowan, treasurer of the Berwind-White company was recalled, but professed almost entire ignorance of the business transactions of the company. Little or no information could be secured from him, and his attitude, coupled with the interruptions of Charles Heebner, counsel for the coal company, resulted in a lively tilt between counsel and elicited vigorous comment on the part of Commissioner Cockrell, who,
with a shrug of his shoulders, declared it was useless to interrogate the witness.

E. B. Chase, sales agent for the Berwind-White company, presented a statement of cars received at the Scalp level operations of the company during 1903, which was found to be at variance with a table previously filed by the Pennsylvania railroad.
He was asked to examine them and inform the commission later as to which is correct.

Coal Order for Commission.
W. A. Guthrie, a mine operator, told the commission that when his representative applied at the office of General Manager Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania railroad, for an order for company fuel, he was told he could get it by paying to a clerk named Huff or Hoff, in Mr. Atter-bury's office, an allowance of three cents a ton. He did not say who imposed the conditions. He reported the matter to Vice President Pugh,
and he secured the order without paying the allowance. Mr. Pugh at first discredited his story, the witness said.

W. L. McCullough, auditor of freight receipts of the New York Central railroad, was another witness.
He presented numerous statements of the system of auditing coal and oil receipts and explained them in detail.

Cherries Dried Fifty-two Years Ago.
Cherries dried by Mrs. Samuel Kau-man of Johnstown, Pa., fifty-two years ago are now being used in the making of pies that are as delicious as though the fruit were of but a season's growth, says the Johnstown Tribune. Those who have tasted the pies say the cherries are reminders of the patient work done by housewives half a century ago
when fruit was dried and preserved
and not canned until cured.

Gold Safety Pins For Socks.

Must Impress Before It Can Convert.
Rockford, Register-Gazette: The Christian Scientists have just dedicated a new "mother" church, the largest in the country and costing $2,000,000. It has a spire which tops
the Bunker Hill monument, marble columns and floors, solid mahogany pews and other things calculated to impress. Did you ever notice that when a religious sect grows and succeeds it always sets about to build a bigger and costlier church than any of its neighbors own? It is as if the churches feel the amount of good they do in the world is regulated by the size and ornateness of the edifice
they occupy.

When Doctors Dine Together

Is it coffee? Is it tea? No! Seldom indeed do they use these evil drugs. They know that they destroy digestion—weaken the nerves—encourage insomnia. The vast majority of physicians prefer pure malt and hop beer at meals, such as

Gund's Peerless Beer

This superb beer has been brewed for over half a century from the best malting Barley and imported Bohemian Hops by the celebrated "Gund Natural Process." Physicians knowing its commanding superiority over all other American beers not only approve of it for their own table, but heartily recommend it to poorly nourished and convalescing patients. The testimony of the World's greatest physicians prove that beer is undoubtedly healthy—for example we print the following:

DR. WILLIS P. KING, of Kansas City, formerly President of the Missouri State Medical Society, speaks of beer as follows:

"Beer to persons of moderate health, where used in moderate quantities, does not only increase weight and strength of body, but has the influence of aiding the digestive apparatus to digest other things taken as food. For nearly 40 years I have prescribed our best beers, ordering three to four glasses a day, in a great variety of ailments and the RESULTS have been wonderfully beneficial."

GUND'S PEERLESS Bottled Beer is procurable at all first-class public resorts and found in the homes of those most discriminating. Telephone at once and have a case delivered today.

Chance on Covering First Base

Great Baseball General Says Difficulties of the Position Have Increased. "Try For Every Ball, No Matter How Bad the Throw."

By FRANK CHANCE.

Captain-manager and first baseman of the Chicago Nationals.

First base is a position that is requiring more brain work right along, and it has increased manifold in difficulty in the last ten years.

More qualifications are required of a first baseman today than formerly, and head work is considered among the first. Besides this, a first baseman must bat hard and run the bases well.

He must understand how to advance a man on base, and play team work both with his bat and in the field; hence the position is not the easy one some persons who have never given the matter any study imagine.

The main fault with young players is that they do not give attention enough to headwork.

If they have good height and reach and can play a good mechanical game that is all they think is required of the position. This is all wrong. Headwork and snap on the part of the first baseman puts life into a team, and the finished points which come only with study and practice are the ones which tell in the long run.

Avoid being only a mechanical player, and try to make yourself an active, hustling member of the team.

The first baseman is on one of the danger points of the diamond.

Throws if unstopped at that point are more likely to do serious damage than those to any other place on the team. On throws from shortstop, third baseman and pitcher there is no chance to back him up, and if the ball gets past the first baseman the runner is sure of third if not of home.

On throws by the second baseman a good catcher will prevent the runner

LOGIC IN JAPANESE WAYS.

Their Topsy Turvy Customs Find Defenders Who Reason Well.

"When first I went to Japan I was continually running across customs and things which made the country a veritable topsy turvydom to me," said a man who has spent many years in the Land of the Rising Sun. "It looked as though the people went out of their way in order to practice the art of inversion. I was, however, made to understand pretty quickly that the Japanese was the right way and that the west would catch up some day and learn to do things as they did. Really there does appear to be some reason in their statement when you consider things from their point of view."

"For instance, a gentleman takes you to his stable to see the horses. Upon walking in you are surprised to find the horses' heads where we imagine their tails ought to be."

"The Japanese is very much too polite to laugh at your expressed surprise, but there is at least satire in his grave reply, 'Do you not think it preferable when you enter a stable to have the head of the horse convenient to your hand rather than the other, the sometimes kicking end?'"

"Or, taking the addressing of letters as practiced there. This is how it would run if you were writing to a friend in this country:

Canada,
Ont.,
Toronto,
Young Street,
220
Smith,
John,
Mr.

"Of course it looks absurd to us. But your native friend will solemnly draw your attention to the great advantage it is to the postal people to have the final destination of the letter appear first above everything else."

"The house furnishing is another thing which surprises one at first. A room will have perhaps one article of furniture in it. It may be a costly vase or a lovely cabinet, but there will be nothing else there. At the back of the house is what is known as the 'go-down,' a kind of superior lumber room, and there may be any amount of furniture stored away there."

"The art of concentration is so well taught by these extraordinary people that one thing at a time is considered to be enough to look at. After a time a week, or possibly a month or two, another choice article from the go-down replaces that one, which is stored by in its turn. Traveled Japanese will often remark that when first they entered western drawing rooms they felt as though they were visiting sale bazaars. To tell the truth, they imagine us to be rather vulgar in displaying all of our furniture at one and the same time."

"There are other curious things done there from our point of view which the Japanese can easily defend against our criticism. The carpenter in sawing pushes the saw away instead of drawing it to him, and in that way keeps the line always in view. In using a plane he does the same for the same reason. Of course in reading they begin at the bottom of the page and read up, which so far as I can find out is simply the result of long custom."—Washington Post.

The Elks' state convention in Peru, Ind., picked Lafayette as the place for next year's meeting and elected Frank Herring of South Bend president.

ROAST FOR DOCTORS.

George Bernard Shaw Intimates That Money Is Their Main.

George Bernard Shaw, the English critic and dramatist, has recently been roasting the medical profession at an antivivisection meeting in London, says a cable dispatch to the New York American and Journal. The versatile dramatist said:

"Doctors are like the police for intimidation. I have lately been to France, where the police were trying desperately to keep up the pretense that there was a revolution. While the French people were obstinately refusing to revolt on any terms and had to be charged by dragons before they could be persuaded to do so. Doctors are always threatening that if we do not do as they advise us we shall die. With regard to myself, they have warned me against my diet, and I am convinced that when I do die, even if I should then be 110, people will say, 'That's what comes of disobeying the doctors.'"

"To threaten people with death if they do not try certain cures is very lucrative. The medical profession writes letters to the newspapers in which they tell us what advantages have been conferred on the human race by vivisection."

"It is only of late years that some people have wanted to know why it is that in spite of modern remedies there are as many people who die of the diseases against which they are directed as before. The doctors reply that the absolute mortality may be as great as before, but that the 'case mortality' has diminished. If this is so it shows that although they cure their patients, they must create the cases they cure."

"When fashionable surgeons can earn in a single day from 60 to 500 guineas it is evident that they have a strong pecuniary motive for mutilating their fellow creatures. I cannot help noticing that there are fashions in operations. The surgeons are always discovering that certain organs are unnecessary and ought to be extirpated. At one time it was the tonsils, then the uterus, and now no self-respecting person would think of going about with an appendix."

"For a time formalin was all the fashion. One medical man tried it on some paper, then on something a little more expensive, namely, a rabbit."

and finally on himself. It was discovered, however, that formalin does not kill the tubercle bacillus, but, on the contrary, the tubercle bacillus has a peculiar taste for it and thrives upon it."

"The arguments of the vivisectionists much resemble in principle those of the militant anarchists. 'What does it matter,' the latter will say, 'if we blow to pieces every one in this room, provided we can thereby secure the millennium?'"

ROOSEVELT, HUNTING SHAFT

Southwesterners to Build a Novel Monument in Theodore.

President Roosevelt is soon to be immortalized as the pioneer coyote exterminator of the southwest, according to a dispatch from Lawton, Okla. This is to be accomplished through the erection of a monument on the exact spot where the president's tent was pitched during the few days of his hunt in southwest Oklahoma last spring. The monument is to cost several thousand dollars and is to be paid for by popular subscription.

The report was current recently that the Rock Island system has selected the quarter section of land upon which the president camped as the site of a town to be called Theodore. The monument is to be erected in the center of the town site and will bear inscriptions giving the names of the president's party, the date of the hunt, etc. Figures representing the president, John Abernethy, fleeing coyotes and chasing hounds are to be placed on the pedestal around the monument's base.

Names For Western Towns. Attractive names for towns to be built up along their extensions are being sought by railroad men in the west," said George Parsons of Chicago to a reporter of the Milwaukee Sentinel. "Owing to recent disclosures the names of leading public men and private individuals are not as welcome for these purposes as they were in the past, but as individuality is sought it may be that Indian names will figure to a large extent in the nomenclature of these new towns."

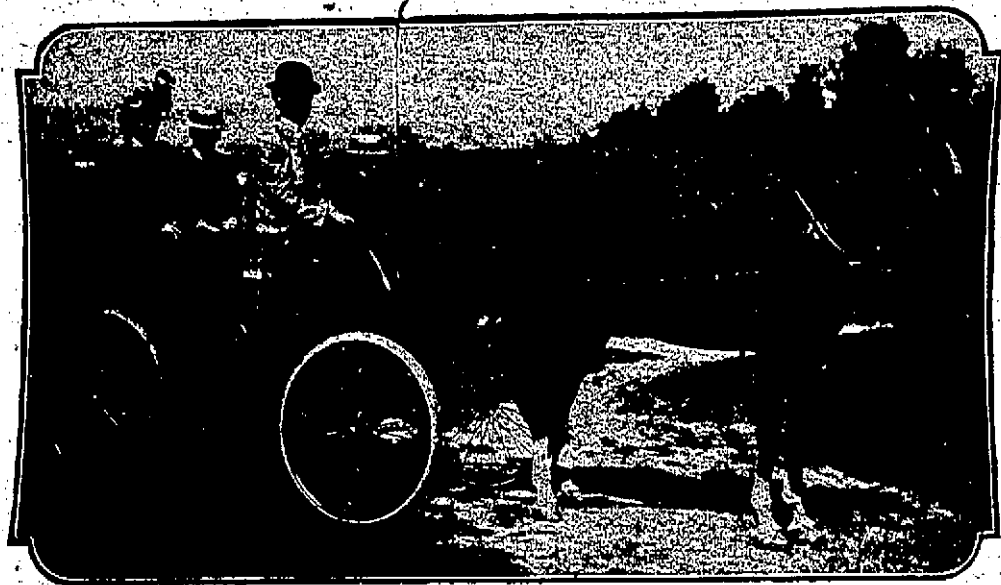

The grand larceny case of the state against Judge William A. Kerr was dismissed in Minneapolis for lack of evidence.

FRANK CHANCE CAPTURING A WILD THROW from getting around, but even here a miss is likely to prove costly.

A first baseman is in a position to save more errors for his team-mates than any other man on the team. Never shrink a bad throw even though it will not count as an error against you. That is the worst thing you can do, as it will cause your fielders to lose confidence in you.

Even if impossible to make an out, try hard to stop the ball and save the extra bases that will be gained if you fail to do so.

A conscientious player who is out for the good of his team even at the sacrifice of himself is the one who will succeed.

Study your fellow players carefully so as to know their peculiarities and be in a position to protect their weak points.

Have a good understanding especially with the catcher and pitcher.

An understanding with the other infielders is of but little less importance, as the first baseman must work with them more than any other player on the team.

In conclusion, play clean, hard ball. Never give up, and play the hardest you know how even if your team appears hopelessly beaten.

There frequently comes a change in luck when a game appears to have been lost which ultimately leads to victory, and you cannot foresee when it is coming.

THEREFORE KEEP TRYING.
